

I support XM's right to offer whatever services they feel the consumer needs, and do not see the reason that they should be unnaturally limited in what they can offer.